Bridesmaids in Quaint Gowns and Hats—Other Modish Details.

Family lace which had been worn by the sister of the bride, their mother and grandmother, adorned the wedding dress of Miss Allison Janney Miller at her marriage Tuesday in Baltimore to George O. Redington of New York. Her dress was of heavy white satin. The bodice was of tulle and lace and the skirt was made quite full with panicle effects on each side of tulle. The long court train was a combination of the tulle and lace, edged with bands of satin. The tulle veil fell to the end of her train. She carried a shower of lilies of the valley and white orchids. The bride's sister was matron of honor and wore a costume of yellow pussy willow tulle combined with silver lace, a large black velvet hat ornamented with a single yellow rose completing the dainty costume. Her flowers were pink roses and orchids.

Miss June Wood, who became Mrs. Albert E. Meder last week in Detroit, wore soft white lovely mingling of satin overdressed with tulle and Pastel Shades.

A court train falling from the shoulders. The skirt was short and full, being banded around the bottom with silver lace, and the bodice was made entirely of tulle and silver lace. The veil was arranged high in the back and held in place by a band of silver which came down over the forehead. The matron of honor wore her wedding gown of white charmeuse, en-train, with an overdress of tulle, embroidered in silver and a cap of white tulle. Her bouquet consisted of chrysanthemums in shades of pink, yellow and lavender. The delicate rainbow colorings were artistically used in the bridesmaids' frocks, which were most effective in design. All four gowns were made short, the skirts being ruffled from the waist to the hem with tulle in shades of pink, green, yellow and lavender, and the bodices were of pastel sequins. The costumes differed only in the sleeves, caps and slippers, each maid having hers in a different shade. They carried chrysanthemums.

A bride of last week in New York was Miss Estelle Young Remann, now Mrs. Ernest Wet. The hour originally set for the wedding was half-past 3 o'clock, but this was changed to 2, because of the preparation in Fifth avenue for the woman suffrage parade.

The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a gown of white satin combined with old lace and made with a court train. Her veil was caught in a ruff of tulle and orange blossoms instead of the usual lace cap. The bride's sister, Mrs. William Everdell, Jr., who was her chief attendant, and the four bridesmaids were stunningly pretty costumes of blue satin combined with palest pink chiffon. The bodice of each costume was blue with white tulle and pink chiffon. A panel of the dull, light blue satin in front broadened from the waist to the hem of the skirt. The bridesmaids wore basket hats of black and gold, trimmed with fur, and Mrs. Everdell's hat was of gold cloth and black. All wore scarves of sheer chiffon, dark brown, wisps of which were drawn over the lower part of the face, with the rest of the filmy scarf wound around the bodice, then falling from the waist like a sash.

The autumn colors, brown and gold, were used in decorations at the church as well as the Autumn Colors in gowns of the bridesmaids and the bride's attendants.

Wedding Details. The recent wedding in Columbus, Ohio, of Miss Elizabeth Carroll and Mr. George F. Wieser. The altar vases were filled with yellow chrysanthemum blooms, and the white wicker vases inside the chancel, at the railing, and at either side of the white marble altar were filled with great clusters of bronze-tinted hydrangeas and yellow chrysanthemums. The bride's gown was white satin and tulle, trimmed with bouquets of hydrangeas and golden yellow chrysanthemums, tied with tulle.

The bride wore an elaborate creation of white satin and tulle, ornamented with beautiful lace. A court train hung from her shoulders over which fell her long bridal veil of tulle, edged with tiny chiffon ruffles and wreathed with orange blossoms. She carried a white chiffon muff, showered with orchids and lilies of the valley. Her bridesmaids wore canary colored tulle, with short full skirts, having foundation slips, finished in ruffled scallops and bouffant overdresses hanging from the points. Many individual features were introduced to add to the charm of the wedding. Their slippers were gold, worn with stockings to match their gowns, and their picture hats were of brown tulle, trimmed with bunches of yellow flowers. All carried brown tulle muffs, ornamented with clusters of black-eyed susans, attached to streamers of tulle, which hung to the bottom of the skirts.

Miss Leslie Thornton McEvoy, daughter of James H. McEvoy of Richmond, and David William Graham of New York had an orchid wedding, and yellow, pink and orchid shades were used as the color scheme.

The bride's dress was of white duchesse satin, elaborately trimmed and fashioned with a bodice of tulle and opalescent studded with pearls. The court train hung from the shoulders. The wedding veil which was of tulle, from a coronet of pearls, crossed the brow becomingly and fell in a graceful enveloping fold. She carried a muff bouquet of orchids and lilies of the valley. Miss Bertha Hulcher was maid of honor, and wore pink tulle and coral ruffled pink rosebuds. Mrs. P. Clifton Talley was matron of honor. Her chic costume was of buff tulle with silver lace trimmings. The bridesmaids, Misses Mary Kain, Carroll V. D. Frick of Washington, Bernadette Meredith and Agnes Gering, were gownned in orchid-shade dresses, with quaint hats to match.

A recent Cleveland bride, Miss Frances Bagby, wore ivory-white duchesse satin in quaintly designed attire of the 1830 period.

Follow 1830 Models. The skirts short and draped with feecy, bouffant skirts of silk tulle, over which panniers were caught gracefully at the sides, very full over the hips. The court train of satin was held at the shoulders with knots of orange blossoms and the bridal veil was prettily worn, falling from a confining band of point lace, which gave the effect of a crown in front, and caught with orange blossoms at the back. The matron of honor was gownned in an 1830 creation of Killarney rose-pink satin and tulle, the full panniers looped with garlands of tiny pink Killarney rosebuds. She carried a great loose cluster of Killarney roses and ferns.

MISS CLAIRE CORNELL Of New York, who visited Miss Edith Gracie.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Maurice Hecksher, who was carried in an arched white rock with a blue yoke, topped by a white straw poke bonnet having old-time pink roses banded about it. She carried a tiny basket filled with mignon roses.

The dresses worn at the Danenhauer-Frazier wedding in Philadelphia last week seem to the end of the court train and were white with a white chignon, white bride's satin, trimmed with seed pearls and old family duchess lace. The corsage was V cut at the neck and arranged with a Charlotte Corday fichu caught with pearls. The tulle veil fell to the end of the court train and was held on the coiffure by a coronet of orange blossoms which had been worn by the mother of the bride at her own wedding on the anniversary of which the present ceremony took place.

Wore Mother's Orange Blossom Wreath. The bride, who was given in marriage by her grandfather, Col. John W. Frazier, wore a white chignon, white bride's satin, trimmed with seed pearls and old family duchess lace. The corsage was V cut at the neck and arranged with a Charlotte Corday fichu caught with pearls. The tulle veil fell to the end of the court train and was held on the coiffure by a coronet of orange blossoms which had been worn by the mother of the bride at her own wedding on the anniversary of which the present ceremony took place.

Her bouquet was a shower one of white dahlias. The maid of honor, Miss Dorothea Schiweley of Jenkintown, was in cloth of gold with a puffed shawl of gold net. Bands of pale blue velvet formed the shoulder straps of the bodice, from which fell tiny and sleeves and the high waist was outlined by a narrow piping of velvet. Gold slippers matched the costume. She carried a cluster of salmon-pink dahlias.

The two bridesmaids, Miss Edna Lawrence of Milbourne and Miss Margaret Stanford of Bryn Mawr were dressed alike in turquoise-blue satin, striped marquisette over accordion-pleated white chiffon trimmed at the neck and sleeves with lace. Their coiffures were arranged in Grecian fashion, with a gold band, and they had folded hair filled with pink dahlias, suspended from the shoulders by gold-colored ribbons.

Novelties abounded in the dress of the bride and her attendants at the marriage of Miss Diantha Allen Fitch and Mr. Connor Lawrence at St. Bartholomew's Church, New York, Wednesday last. The bride's gown was of white chiffon brocade in silver, having a very short skirt, with a puff of silver lace instead of a hem and a court train of white satin with a large black velvet hat were faced with pink, and each hat had a long scarflike streamer of black velvet faced with blue that extended from the bride around the neck and down the back. A single pink rose was caught to each brim, and they carried large bouquets of pink roses with trails of long-stemmed roses.

The bridesmaids were gownned like the maids of honor, only in blue and silver. All wore old-time ribbon laced silver sandals, with flat heels, and their hats were faced with pink. The wedding of Miss Carrie Hamerslaugh, daughter of Mrs. Rose Hamerslaugh of Philadelphia, and Mr. Sidney Wollberg of this city will take place at 2:30 this afternoon at the residence of Rabbi Mayer, 300 North 15th street, Philadelphia. The ceremony will be performed in the presence of the immediate families of the young couple. The bride, who will be given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Harry Hamerslaugh, will wear a traveling suit of blue broadcloth trimmed with seal and hat to match. She will carry a bouquet of yellow chrysanthemums. Mr. Benjamin Wollberg of this city will act as best man for his brother. Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Wollberg will leave for a southern trip, and will be at home in this city at the Turin, 1924 17th street, after November 15.
